

Project:
Battle of Hastings

Back Story

Client's fiancé contacted me about helping her soon-to-be-hubby get his home ready to list. They both had lost spouses to cancer within a 5 year period, they both took care of their spouses til they passed. It was obvious the home had not been a high priority during that time and some things had fallen into disrepair. The first consultation was right after Thanksgiving and I decided that being so close to Christmas was just too hectic for people's schedules but when I saw the volume and quality of items I decided having it before Christmas may be better. We had to work hard and quick to be ready by our date of December 14th.

The home had some very nice antiques in excellent condition. His now deceased wife was quite the collector and was a quilter, seamstress and several other of those types of hobbies. Due to the volume of quilting and sewing items I tried to get the word out on my facebook page to please come shopping early! That helped alot. I would say the Yard-Estate Sale went very well. Thursday was the busiest, Saturday was a rainy day but did not stop people from coming. Sunday was the "mostly FREE" day and some took advantage but I decided it was either them or me clearing it out.

Kitchen

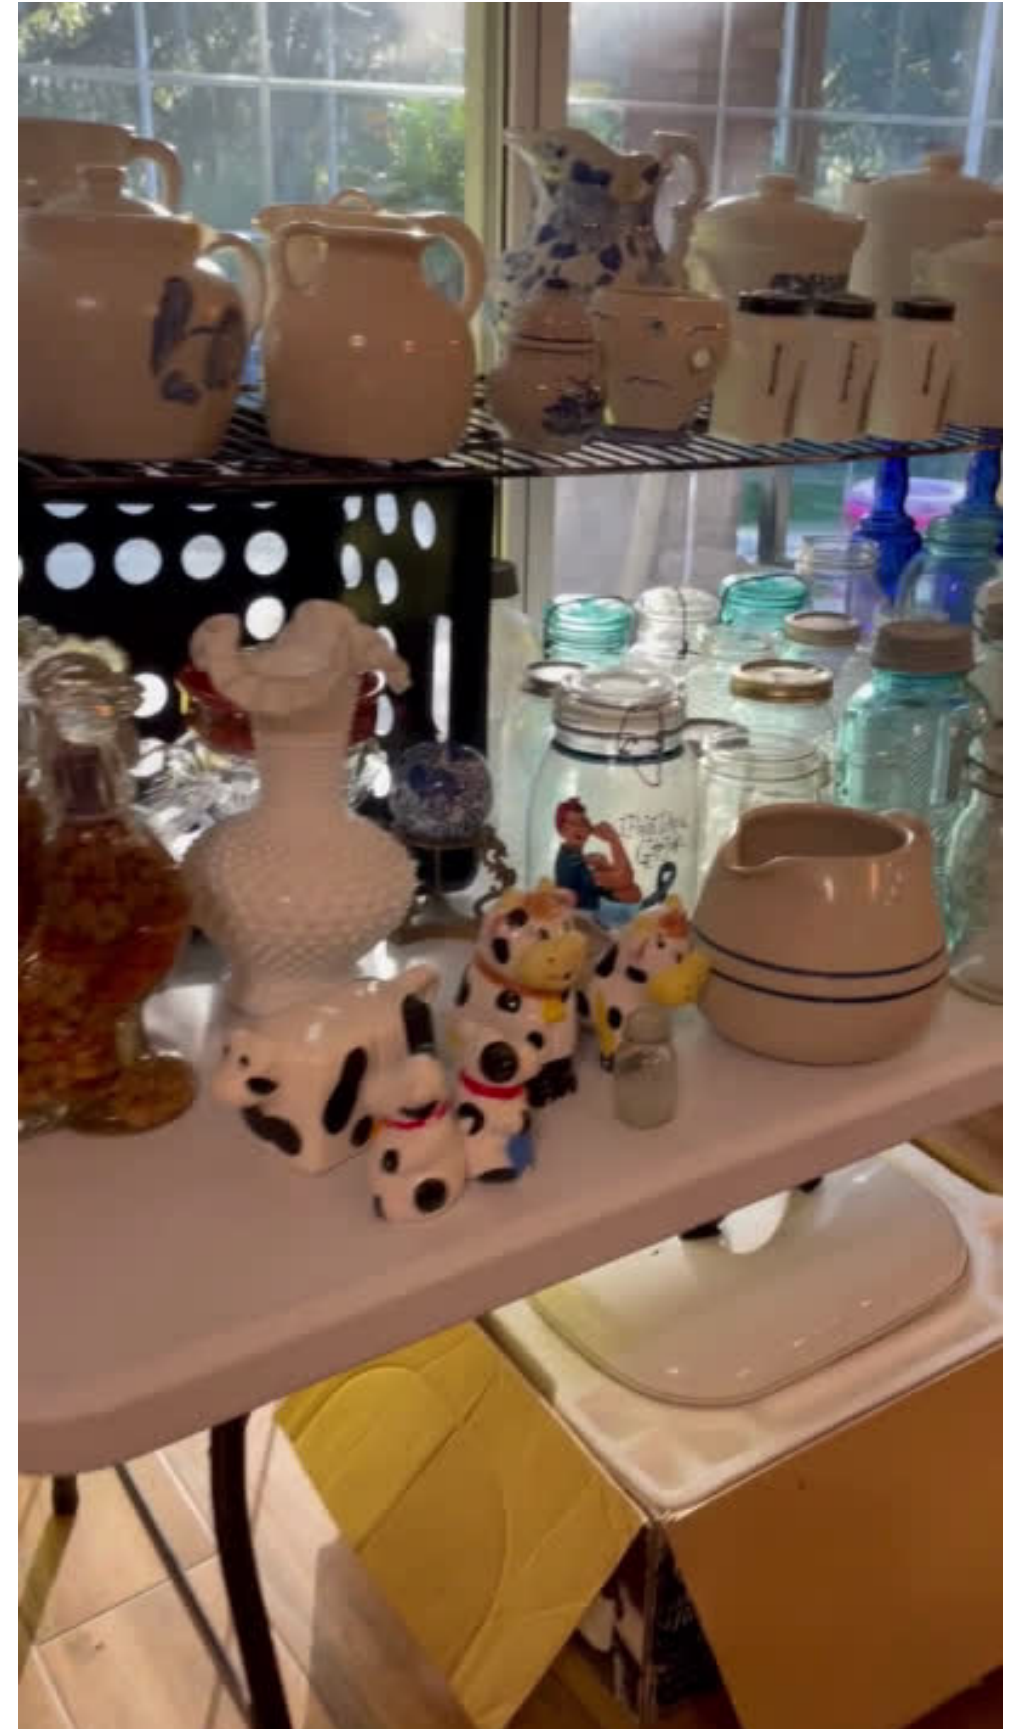

Dining room area

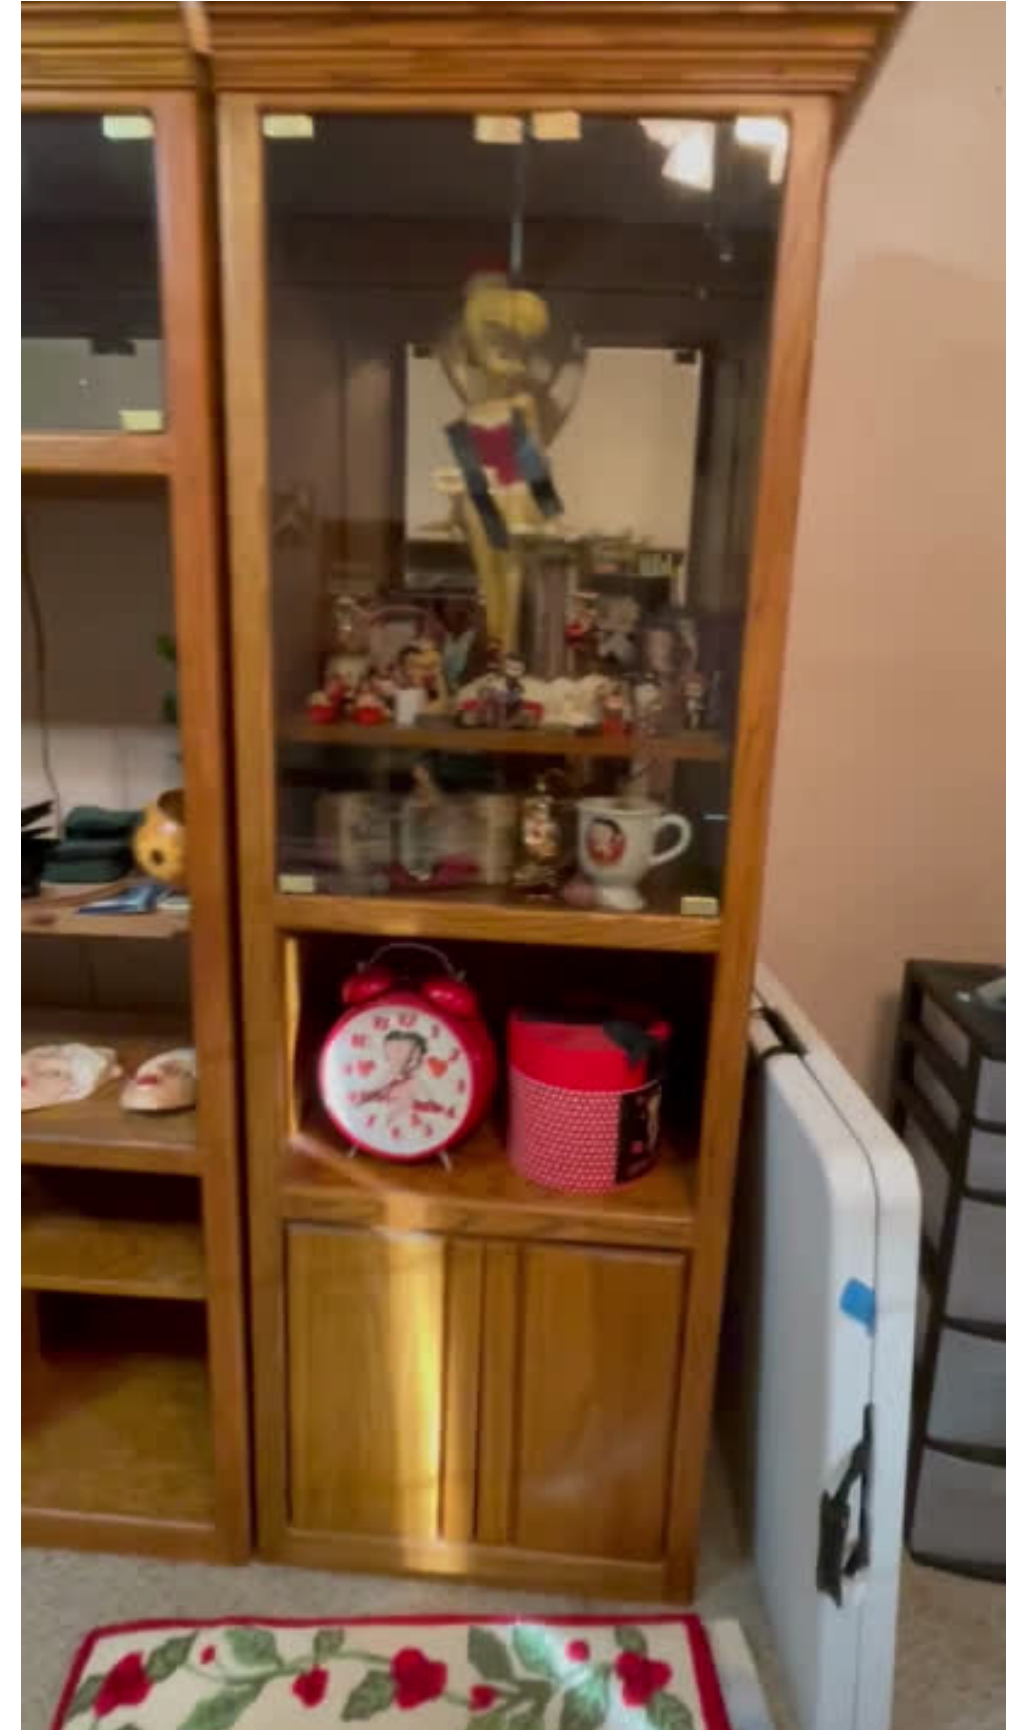

Bedroom

Yard-Estate Sale

Yes, someone wanted to buy the shed

I got to hold someone's puppy while they were browsing

Called Lighthouse Ministries to pick up the unsold items

After

